

EDITORIAL

The current issue of the Journal of Anatomical Sciences (Volume 12 Number 2) has 16 peer-reviewed research articles that cut across different areas of Basic Medical Sciences, most of which are from the various sub-disciplines of Anatomy.

The publication of the current issue coincides with the 17th Annual General Meeting of our Society, Anatomical Society of Nigeria holding at the University of Ilorin from 7th to 11th September, 2021 as well as election into various positions of responsibility. It also marks the end of my tenure as the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal having served 7 years in that capacity. I will greatly miss all our esteemed authors whose articles have contributed in no small measure to our success story. In the same vein, I will miss our respected reviewers whose invaluable contributions are the major reasons this Journal has remained reputable. The Journal will continue to wax strong as I am convinced the Executive arm of our Society will appoint a new Editor-in-Chief who will continue to improve on the quality of our Journal and ensure that publications are regular.

On behalf of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Anatomical Sciences, I say thank you to all the Authors who contributed their valuable research articles to the current issue. I also say a special thank you to our colleagues whose selfless services in reviewing our articles at short notices have made the publication of the current issue and the past issues possible.

Lastly, I encourage our esteemed subscribers and authors to keep patronizing our journal as they are assured of quality services.
Please stay safe!

Prof. G.S. Oladipo
Editor-in-Chief.
September, 2021.

OFFICERS OF THE ANATOMICAL SOCIETY OF NIGERIA

Acting President	Assoc. Prof. A. Ayannuga
Secretary General	Assoc. Prof. A. Danladi
Assistance Secretary	Dr. A.A. Sadeeq
Treasurer	Dr. E.A. Osunwoke
Editor-in-Chief (JAS)	Prof. G.S. Oladipo
Editor (JAS)	Dr. E.J. Olotu